

A Picture is Worth a Hundred Words

A Presentation by Kas Stone
Tuesday May 16th from 7-8 pm
Margaret Hennigar Public Library
135 North Park Street, Bridgewater NS

Words and images are two different ways of telling stories and expressing our feelings about a subject. One appeals visually, the other linguistically to different areas of our brains to get their message across. However when words and images are used effectively together – pairing a compelling photograph with a clever title or interesting backstory – their impact can be truly inspiring. In this presentation, professional photographer and author Kas Stone explores the connection between words and images, with examples taken from her own portfolio and the work of other photographers including the Bridgewater Photo Club's "South Shore Stories" exhibition at the Margaret Hennigar Library Gallery.
