

The Creative Edge

Finding Your Photographic Right-Brain

Workshop with Kas Stone

Truro Image Makers, Saturday April 22, 2017 from 10am-1pm
First Baptist Church Hall, 759 Prince Street, Truro, Nova Scotia

Fee: Members $10, Non-Members $15

Go With The Flow © Kas Stone

About This Workshop

One of the delights of the photographic process is that it engages both sides of our brain, and exercises a broad range of skills in making an effective image. However in today's high-tech world it is easy to find the balance tipping too heavily toward the left, so that we become obsessed with gear, optics and "rules", and end up with pictures that are technically superb – and dull as ditchwater!

This presentation encourages you to tap more deeply into your right brain and restore a healthier balance for happier image-making. We will explore the meaning of 'creativity' and see how it can be applied to the photographic process (from initial inspiration, to techniques in-camera, to post-processing at the computer) for images that are not only more rewarding personally, but more inspiring to your viewers too.

Presenter Bio

Kas Stone is a professional photographic artist based in Lunenburg County, where she runs a studio gallery and leads workshops in digital imaging. She is active in the photographic community as a presenter and competition judge. Her portfolio includes an extensive list of publications, exhibitions and national awards, with a feature profile in Outdoor Photography Canada magazine. Visit Kas and learn more at www.kasstone.ca.

